

Tulane University, Department of Sociology
Tenure-Track Assistant Professors (2)

The Department of Sociology at Tulane University invites applications for two (2) tenure-track assistant professor positions to begin July, 2017. For both positions, primary areas of specialization are open; however, preference will be given to candidates with research interests in one or more of the following areas: urban sociology, race/ethnicity, environmental sociology, sociology of health and illness, and sociology of law. Successful candidates will be expected to pursue an active research agenda and external funding opportunities, teach in and contribute to the department's undergraduate and graduate programs, and teach service learning courses. Review of applications will begin October 3, 2016, and continue until the positions are filled. All application materials must be submitted online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/36579>; required materials include a letter of interest describing background, qualifications, and research and teaching strengths; a current Curriculum Vita; and samples of representative publications. Applicants should also arrange to have three letters of reference forwarded to <http://apply.interfolio.com/36579> on their behalf. For additional information, applicants can contact Michele Adams, Chair of Sociology (madams2@tulane.edu). Tulane University is an equal employment opportunity/affirmative action/persons with disabilities/veterans employer committed to excellence through diversity. Tulane will not discriminate against individuals with disabilities or veterans. All eligible candidates are encouraged to apply.