

The Department of Sociology at Fayetteville State University invites applications for a 1-Year Fixed Term Position to begin fall 2017 (August) and end spring 2018 (May). We are seeking applicants who can teach three sections of Principles of Sociology and one section of Social Statistics during both the fall 2017 and spring 2018 academic semesters. Fayetteville State University is a constituent institution of the University of North Carolina and the second-oldest public institution of higher education in the state. Founded in 1867 as the Howard School for the education of African Americans, today FSU serves a growing student body of approximately 6,000 and ranks among the nation's most diverse campus communities. Fayetteville is located in the scenic Cape Fear River Valley of North Carolina, between the Blue Ridge Mountains and the Atlantic Ocean. Residents of Fayetteville enjoy mild temperatures, four distinct seasons, a low cost of living, and easy access to beautiful Carolina beaches.

Successful applicants will be part of a cohesive team of culturally diverse faculty that works closely with students as mentors in our undergraduate and graduate programs. A Ph.D. in Sociology is preferred at time of employment, but ABD candidates who are near the completion of their degree will be strongly considered. Applicants must have experience with course development and instruction in Canvas. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. To apply, please submit a letter of application and current curriculum vita through the FSU employment website at <http://www.uncfsu.edu/hr/employment>. Candidates must also send all official undergraduate and graduate transcripts, and three original letters of recommendation from people familiar with their work to:

Dr. Nicole Lucas, Chair
