

Assistant/Associate Professor in Sociology

The Department of Sociology and Human Services in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences at Lynchburg College invites applications for a full-time (4-4 teaching load), three-year appointment (possible conversion to tenure-track) in Sociology to begin Fall 2018. We seek a dynamic, broadly-trained sociologist who can teach in the areas of social inequality and research methods. The ability to teach courses in the area of Human Services is a plus.

Applicants should have a PhD in Sociology, though ABDs will be considered. A strong commitment to teaching undergraduates in a liberal arts environment is essential. Experience working with a multicultural and diverse student body is desirable. Lynchburg College strives for a diverse and inclusive community; minorities are encouraged to apply. Selected candidate must pass a background check that is satisfactory to the College.

Applicants should send their curriculum vita, graduate transcripts, a diversity statement, evidence of successful teaching, and three letters of reference to Search Committee, Department of Sociology and Human Services, c/o Carol Martin, Lynchburg College, 1501 Lakeside Drive, Lynchburg, VA 24501 or to martin.c@lynchburg.edu. Review of applications will begin Jan. 15, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. EOE.
