

POSITION #1

Assistant Professor of Sociology

Department of Sociology

University of Indianapolis

The Department of Sociology in the Shaheen College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Indianapolis is seeking a faculty member in sociology beginning in August 2018, for a nine-month, tenure track appointment at the assistant professor level. The department is recognized for faculty and student engagement in the local community, its research concentration, including through its Community Research Center (CRC), and its strong focus on social inequality. Areas of expertise should include a combination of research methods/statistics along with urban and community sociology, social inequality, family, or theory. Opportunities to teach in other areas of expertise may be possible depending upon departmental needs. Interest in community engagement and/or supporting student and community research is a plus. PhD or ABD with strong evidence of completing the doctorate prior to the beginning of the academic year required. Responsibilities Include: Teaching 24 credit hours per year; providing service to the department, college, University, and/or community; making scholarly contributions to the discipline; and if appropriate, serving in departmental administrative roles such as the MA director or the director of the CRC with release time from teaching.

Apply electronically at <http://hrjobs.uindy.edu>. Review of applications will begin immediately.

The University of Indianapolis is an equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, creed, sex, sexual orientation or identity, marital status, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status. The University of Indianapolis does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs and activities, including employment and admission as required by Title IX.

POSITION #2

Instructor of Sociology

Department of Sociology

University of Indianapolis

The Department of Sociology in the Shaheen College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Indianapolis is seeking a faculty member in sociology beginning in August 2018, for a nine-month, non-tenure track appointment at instructor level, with the possibility of annual renewal based on performance. The department is recognized for faculty and student engagement in the local community, its research concentration, including through its Community Research Center, and its strong focus on social inequality. The individual who fills this position will teach 24 credit hours per year, primarily through introductory courses, those related to the person's area of expertise, and other courses as needed by the department as well as contribute service at the department, college, and university level and demonstrate an understanding of scholarly work in the field as well as general intellectual activity.

Apply electronically at <http://hrjobs.uindy.edu>. Review of applications will begin immediately.

The University of Indianapolis is an equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, creed, sex, sexual orientation or identity, marital status, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status. The University of Indianapolis does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs and activities, including employment and admission as required by Title IX.