

The Sociology Department at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor who specializes in Gender, Sexuality and Medical Sociology in a continuing academic year appointment. We prefer a willingness to teach statistics, methods and/or theory. Further, teaching would include courses both at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Besides teaching duties, candidates will engage in research and service activities. Ph.D. in Sociology, or related field, preferred at time of employment, beginning August 2019, however ABDs are considered. Persons who have not completed all degree requirements by the beginning of the contract period may be considered for a one-year term interim appointment at the rank of instructor. Salary is commensurate with credentials, qualifications, and experience.

Come join a collegial and supportive faculty teaching both graduate and undergraduates social work students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville (SIUE). Edwardsville is lovely community only 20 minutes away from St. Louis and SIUE campus is surrounded by over 2,000 acres of woodlands, gardens and lakes, allowing the benefits of both green spaces and access to a large metropolitan center. Enjoy maintained bike trails, access to world-class museums, nationally recognized performing arts and professional sports.

To apply, send letter of application, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of research interests, curriculum vitae, copies of transcripts, three reference letters to:

Electronic submissions preferred: gensexmedsoc@siue.edu

Chair, Gender, Sexuality and Medical Sociology Position
Southern Illinois University Edwardsville
Dept. of Sociology, Box 1455
Edwardsville, IL 62026